

Oxford Medical Publications

Practising Health for All

Edited by David Morley, Jon Rohde, and Glen Williams

There have been significant and exciting developments in primary health care (PHC) during the past decade, but the main problems in bringing Health for All within our grasp are not primarily medical, but political and organizational. This book takes a case-study approach to these problems and shows how they can be overcome. Illustrated Paperback £2.00

Paediatrics in the Tropics

Current Review

Edited by R. G. Hendrickse

This book brings together a wide range of subjects which are of importance in paediatrics in the tropics and the sub-tropics. It includes coverage of important aspects of neonatology, nutrition and growth and development, gastroenterology, and infectious diseases. Illustrated New as paperback £8.95

Advances in International Maternal and Child Health

Volume 3

D. B. Jelliffe and E. F. P. Jelliffe

This series draws together information on major conditions affecting the health of mothers and young children from a global point of view. Illustrated £20

Manual on Feeding Infants and Young Children

Margaret Cameron and Yngue Hofvander

'Any professional health worker considering practising in developing countries needs a collection of reliable reference books, and this one certainly provides enough basics on nutrition to enable sound and practical advice to be given to local inhabitants.' Nursing Mirror Illustrated Paperback £2.95

Refugee Community Health Care

Edited by Stephanie Simmonds, Patrick Vaughan, and S. William Gunn

'Miss Simmonds is to be congratulated on this much-needed publication which results from, and is replete with, her own vast experience with refugees. It will become a bible for relief workers and will save countless lives.' World Medicine Illustrated Paperback £2.95

Oxford University Press
